General Statement

Under the general direction of the Assistant Chief Counsel of the Division of Occupational Safety and Health (DOSH), Attorney IVs represent DOSH in the full range of legal issues within the jurisdiction of the Division. Attorney IVs are the most experienced and qualified attorneys within DOSH. They are expected to serve as Senior Counsel, perform the most complex, novel, difficult and sensitive legal work of the unit, and to have a high level of experience, strong technical lawyering skills, and subject matter expertise in one or more areas of the Division's responsibility; act as a lead over less experienced attorneys; devise curriculum and author original training materials; and serve as a resource for other attorneys and field staff both with respect to lawyering skills and occupational safety and health law. Their experience allows them to effectively work with opposing counsel and other external representatives who also have a high level of experience, expertise and skills. Attorney IVs also perform administrative functions, such as assigning cases, projects and other matters to staff attorneys, as well as other duties as assigned by the Assistant Chief Counsels or Division Chief.

Duties include, but are not limited to: representing DOSH in the most complex, novel and sensitive cases in administrative hearings before the Occupational Safety and Health Appeals Board (the Appeals Board) and civil and writ litigation before California trial and appellate courts; representing and advising the Chief, management, and the Division with regard to policy in sensitive and high profile matters and program direction; providing coordination, analysis and advice concerning Public Records Act requests; analyzing and drafting legislation; drafting regulations; serving as Senior Counsel at stakeholder and other meetings with the public; and providing legal services on a wide variety of other issues that may arise in the operation of DOSH, in multiple substantive areas of law, including occupational safety and health law, administrative law, employment law, labor law, constitutional law, privacy law, corporate law, bankruptcy law, criminal law, and civil procedure.

Essential functions of this position are to perform competently and with strong technical skills in the specific job duties identified below; to take substantial initiative, exercise broad discretion as Senior Counsel with a minimum of supervision, while also taking and following direction from the Assistant Chief Counsels and DOSH leadership; to communicate effectively both orally and in writing, as required for the specific job duties, including consistently producing top quality and compelling legal briefs and other written work product; to appear and perform competently and with a high degree of expertise and professionalism in civil or administrative courts; to communicate in a professional, respectful and productive manner with opposing counsel, clients, stakeholders, colleagues, and the public; to travel as necessary and as assigned; and to demonstrate excellent judgment and act with high ethical standards and professionalism.
